DEFINITIONS

Russell 1000® Value Index: An unmanaged index that measures the performance of the stocks of U.S. companies in the Russell 1000® Index (the largest 1,000 U.S. companies, based on market capitalization) with lower price-to-book ratios and lower forecasted growth values.

Average annual total returns are the annual compounded returns that would have produced the cumulative total return if Fund performance had been constant during the given period. P/E ratio is the price of a stock divided by forward 12-month earnings per share. Sharpe ratio is calculated using standard deviation and excess returns over the 3-month U.S. Treasury bill to determine reward per unit of risk. The higher the Sharpe ratio, the better the fund's historical risk-adjusted performance. Standard deviation is a statistical measure of risk. It reflects the extent to which an asset's rate of return may fluctuate from period to period. Alpha represents the difference between a fund's actual returns and its expected performance, given its level of risk as measured by beta. A positive alpha is the added value an active manager has contributed over the benchmark returns. Beta measures the fund's volatility as compared to that of the fund's benchmark index. Less than 1.0 indicates lower volatility than that of the index; greater than 1.0 indicates higher volatility than that of the index.
